"Aside from a paintings subject matter, a strong composition is essential to holding the viewer's attention. As artists, we want to engage our audience in our work in a profound way. The viewer may not know exactly why they are attracted to a particular painting, but they are unmistakably drawn to it."

Howard Friedland OPAM

Join Howard Friedland OPAM as he talks about and demonstrates several key concepts and techniques to make your paintings more dynamic. By pushing the boundaries of line- tone - and color you can create paintings that have a strong visual impact.

Born in The Bronx, Howard Friedland OPAM studied fine art and commercial art at New York's High School of Music and Art. He went on to attend the highly competitive Cooper Union for Advancement of Art and Science in New York City.
